Echo Of Sind Premier's Dismissal In Commons

No Further Indianisation Of Viceroy's Council, Says Amery

LONDON, Oct. 15.

The Secretary of State for India, Mr. Amery, was asked in the House of Commons to-day, if it was proposed to complete the Indianisation of the Viceroy's Executive by the appointment of Indians to the three portfolios still held by Englishmen.

Mr. Amery: "No such change is at present contemplated".

Liberalite, Mr. Mander: "Does Mr. Amery realise that if he did take action on these linse, it would meet with a very large measure of approval among the Indians".

No further reply was given.

'PACK' ORDER FOR ALLAHBUX'S COLLEAGUES

KARACHI, Oct. 15.

The following Gazette Notification has been issued to-day:—

"The Governor, having found it necessary to do so, has terminated with effect from forenoon of October 10 the tenure of office of members of the Council of Ministers held by Mr Allahbux.

SIND LEAGUE LEADER MEETS GOVERNOR

KARACHI, Oct. 15.

Khan Bahadur M. A. Khuhro, Leader of the Muslim League Party in the Sind Assembly, saw His Excellency the Governor to-day.

Mukhi Gobindram Pritamdas, ex-Hindu Minister, also saw His Excellency to-day.

It is learnt that the Muslim League has decided to support the Hidyatullah Ministry on the condition that it would pursue the League programme. As regards coalescing with the Ministry, the question would be decided later after consultation with Mr. Jinnah.

With the arrival of Mr. G. M. Sayed, a prominent member of the Muslim League Party in the Sind Assembly and a member of the Working Committee of the All-India Muslim League, enthusiasm in the League circles in the matter of joining the Hidayatullah Ministry appears to have cooled down.

Sir Ghulam Hussein Hidayatullah, Officiating Premier, was an early caller at Government House, this morning.

PLEA FOR ALL-PARTIES GOVT.

A prominent member of the Muslim League interviewed by the Associated Press said: "An all-parties Government at the present juncture, including within it the Muslim League, the Hindus and other groups will be of greatest advantage to the Province as decision would then be taken by compromise without loss of time and the Ministry would be afforded stability and strength".

JINNAH'S REPLY AWAITED

It is learnt that Mr. Jinnah has not yet replied to the Muslim League Bloc's request to be permitted to join the Coalition Ministry under Sir Ghulam Hussein. The Bloc's meeting which was to have been held in the morning has been postponed to the evening. The Hindu Bloc is meeting at 5 p.m. and the League Bloc at 7 p.m. The latter's decision may be influenced by the decision of the Hindus.

HINDU M.L.A.'S DEFER DECISION

Decision on the question of joining a Coalition Ministry was again postponed when the Hindu members of the Sind Assembly met this evening at the residence of Seth Partabrai. As unanimity could not be reached it was decided to meet again at 10 a.m. to-morrow at the residence of Mr. Nichaldas Vazirani.

As the meeting commenced six Congress lady volunteers arrived at the place of the meeting and parleyed with the members not to join the Hidayatullah Ministry.

The meeting was attended by eight members. A ninth member arrived in Karachi late in the evening and may participate at to-morrow's meeting. Members of the party after the meeting told the Associated Press that they were still resolved that whatever may be the decision it should be unanimous in the interests of the community.

At the outset the meeting adopted a condolence resolution touching the death of Seth Sitaldas, who was murdered by Hurs in his village early in May last.—

ECHO OF SIND CABINET CRISIS

Mr. Amery replying to a question in the House of Commons regarding the displacement of the Muslim Premier of Sind, Mr. Allahbux, recalled the communique issued by the Governor of Sind on October 10th, adding "I had of course been consulted on the situation created by the Premier's publication made in September of his letter to the Viceroy and had agreed as to the impropriety in the light of it, of his continuing in office, but the final decision to dismiss him was taken by the Governor only after a personal discussion, which owing to the Premier's absence from Sind could not take place until October 10."

The Labourite Mr. Sorensen. "Was the reason for the dismissal of this particular Muslim Premier the return of the titles conferred upon him?

Mr. Amery: "No. That was an indication of his general attitude which was one of direct disapproval of the measures taken by the Government of India to restore order in a grave crisis and the complete identification in his published statement of himself with the attitude of the Congress."

The Conservative Mr. Molson said that the dismissal of this Minister who had shown himself to be thoroughly disloyal had been received with satisfaction in this country.

Amery Mum On Strength Of R. I. Navy

Thirty thousand Indian and Burmese seamen are now serving in British merchantmen. These figures were given in the Commons to-day the Secretary of State for India, Mr. Amery said the figures included only a small number of Burmese. He declined to give details regarding the strength of the Royal Indian Navy beyond stating that its strength had increased nearly sevenfold since the outbreak of the war. Answering questions he said Burmans are not enlisted in the Indian Army, but in the Burma Army whose numbers had increased about threefold since the outbreak of the war.

Consideration For Army Officers

Mr. Amery in the Commons promised to consider the effect of the Indian rate of income-tax on army officers. He agreed that the advantage to officers serving in India was somewhat reduced by this rate.—Reuter.

Sikandar's Advice To Join Hands With Non-Muslims

LAHORE, Oct. 15.

"VICHY" IS NOT LAST CHAPTER

Toilers Of France Have No Choice Between Pully And Black-Mailer

FRENCH FRONTIER, Oct. 15.

With fourteen days to go M. Laval is now expected to tell his countrymen that if they rebel against Germany's Labour ultimatum, the whole of France will pass directly under German control.

Marshal Petain's recent warning that "very hard moments have still to be lived through" is taken as foreshadowing more complete German intervention.

COMPULSION IF NEEDED

What French workers refuse to do willingly, the Nazis will make them do by force. This was made clear last night by Gabriel Lefailee, Secretary of the French Social Information Bureau, in a warning that either Frenchmen "go to Germany voluntarily or else some measure of compulsion would be devised by the French Government to meet the needs of releasing prisoners of war."

TRICKY LAVAL

The time limit for the supply of 133,000 workers to make up the 150,000 promised, has been postponed until the end of October but M. Laval's success is no more likely than that it is to-day—the original zero hour. It is not thought that M. Laval will dare go to the extreme. He may indulge in tricky manoeuvring, making his countrymen feel that it would be better to have him than M. Doriot who, the Germans hope, will not stick at anything required of a Quisling.—Reuter.

LABOUR STRIKE IN LYONS

Vichy Govt.'s Futile Efforts To End Deadlock

LONDON, Oct. 15.

M. Laval's call to skilled workers to present themselves for labour is followed by a big strike in the great industrial city of Lyons.

According to a Vichy report, quoted by the German radio, strike began in several railway workshops and then spread rapidly to a number of private concerns. Efforts by the Vichy Government to bring the workmen back to work having failed, it has been decided to take "measures" to end the strike.

Lyons, with over half a million inhabitants and the commercial capital of the south, is the first big city of France to take concrete action against the labour policy of Vichy Government.—Reuter

A scrutiny of it disclosed that it contained a crude bomb which did not explode. The police were sent for and took possession of the tin.

Demand For

Impeachment Of Hess.

Soviet Move To Expose Hitlerite Clique

MOSCOW, October 15.

Demand for the immediate trial of Rudolf Hess was implied in a Soviet statement which states:—

"The whole of mankind is already familiar with the names and bloody crimes of the leaders of the criminal Hitlerite clique—Hitler, Goering, Hess, Goebbels, Himmler, Ribbentrop, Rosenberg and other organisers of German atrocities.

The Soviet Government considers it necessary to place immediately on trial before a Special International Tribunal and to punish in accordance with the severest Penal Laws any leaders of Fascist Germany who in the course of war may have fallen into the hands of authorities of States fighting against Hitlerite Germany."

The statement which is signed by M. Molotov says: "The Soviet Government is obliged to regard the stern punishment of these leaders of the Hitlerite gang who have already been unmasked as an urgent duty towards the countless widows, orphans and next of kin of those innocent people who have been tortured and done to death on the instructions of those criminals."

The statement concludes with the declaration that Hitlerite Germany must be crushed by the overwhelming might of freedom-loving nations, "for the interests of the whole of mankind demand that an end should be put as soon as possible and once for all to the gangs of frenzied murderers known as the Government of Hitlerite Germany."—Reuter

Germany's War Guilt

LONDON, Oct. 15.

The Soviet Government has issued a statement confirming the responsibility of Germany and her accomplices for atrocities committed in occupied Europe, the Moscow Radio announced to-day.

The statement was made in reply to representations by representatives of Allied Governments in Moscow as well as a representative of the Fighting French National Committee.

The statement issued by the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs on behalf of M. Stalin says that Germans have set themselves "the aim of outright extermination of a considerable part of the population in territories seized by them. The Soviet Government notes that the Germans have not succeeded in breaking the will of European peoples in the struggle for liberation. There can be no doubt that the successful development of this glorious struggle for liberation will become one of the main conditions for the final defeat of our common enemy."—Reuter.

Washington Reactions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.

Asked to comment on to-day's Moscow suggestion that Hess should be brought to trial immediately Mr. Sumner Welles, the Acting Secretary of State, at his Press Conference said he thought it would be premature to say more than that the British and American Governments are agreed that those responsible for atrocities committed during this war shall be held responsible and brought to judgment.

INDIA SHALL BE FREE

"C. R." Condemns Destruction And Urges Patience: Plea For National Govt.

CALCUTTA, Oct. 15.

His faith that the "stone-cold" attitude of the British Government towards India was bound to melt if only India tried, and that India should be united and try for it, was expressed by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, addressing a meeting at the Grand Hotel this evening under the presidency of the Metropolitan of India, the Most Rev. Foss Wescott.

Emphatically condemning the destruction that was going on in the country, Mr. Rajagopalachari said that it would not bring India to her objective and would not improve her future. It was a dangerous thing from every point of view. "You might ask", he added, "What else can we do"? "My answer is: "If there is nothing else to do, let us keep quiet. Let us not do what is wrong. That is my opinion and there is no vagueness about it".

Mr. Rajagopalachari added that by opposing the "bonafide attempts" that were being made now to get freedom for the country and by criticising "the National programme going on for the sake of freedom", we knew that he was running the risk of courting unpopularity, but he was quite convinced that all this would ultimately bring about no good.

INDIA SHALL BE FREE

Mr. Rajagopalachari said that his confidence about the future of India was responsible for his opinion. "I believe, and I have no doubt in my opinion, that at the end of this war we cannot be kept as a subject nation by the British. Do not confuse this with the question of trusting the British. The British may or may not be trustworthy, but I shall be free. I have no doubt in my mind of this, and whether they are going to give it freely or unwillingly makes no difference to us. At the conclusion of the war I have no doubt in my mind that India will be free and will not be a subject nation under Britain, even though Britain may continue to be ruled by people who do not want to give India freedom, even though Britain may still have the same Imperialist notions".

BEWARE OF JAPAN

The war would not last long now, added Mr. Rajagopalachariar. They had waited a long time for the fulfilment of their objective of Indian freedom. Could they not wait another couple of years? And in the meantime desist from any acts of destruction which were wrong and would hamper their cause? "The war has come upon us. It has come overhead, it has come on the waters, and it has come on the land. It is now so near that we are almost in it. If we are bound to be free, then is it right that we should lose this war and then wait another hundred years for our freedom? If we lose our country and fall into the hands of the Japanese, we may have to wait probably for another hundred years for our freedom. We ought not to allow Japan to get hold of us. What some people are now doing in India is an invitation to Japan, and these are things which they would wish us to do. Therefore, there is nothing good in this work of destruction."

Continuing, Mr. Rajagopalachari said that they should align themselves with Britain and the United Nations, as they represented a civilisation and culture better than what the Axis Powers stood for. Hundred per cent Congressmen had admitted times without number and had emphatically asserted that, relatively speaking, the British and the United Nations side was many times preferable to the Axis side. "Whatever may be our cause for anger with the British, we ought to help them and not the Axis. I have no doubt that the Allies will win in the end. German regimentation of resources, their military organisation, their discipline, these may be better than that of the Allied nations. But America and Britain, in a war of attrition like this, have more lasting resources than their adversaries. India must choose the lesser of two evils. Indians must do nothing to help the Axis at the present moment."

CONGRESS POSITION

Explaining the Congress position, Mr. Rajagopalachari said that the Congress wanted to defend the country and wanted to associated itself with the responsibility of such defence. It was not given that responsibility as it was suspected. The Congress wanted power to supply the link between the people and the military machinery of Government, to change the psychology of the people who were apathetic. But the British could not understand the psychology of the Indian people and they denied the Congress all that it asked for. But Indians could not do wrong even if Britain did not agree to their demand.

Urging that the spirit of distrust which now obtained between Britain and India should be removed, Mr. Rajagopalachari said: "Trust Britain for a short period, even though they may not trust you. This is necessary to preserve ourselves."

COMPLACENCY WON'T DO

"There is sort of complacency in the British mind regarding the Japanese move towards India" added Mr. Rajagopalachari. "This complacency is dangerous and foolish. The time that we have should be devoted to forming a National Government at the Centre and in preparing the country, every Province, district and village for stubborn resistance to the aggressor."

The Metropolitan, who presided, said that the greatest help he could render to India was to help it to achieve real national unity, and recognise that though there were differences, all were ONE PEOPLE AND ONE NATION.

Sir A. H. Ghuznavi presided over the latter part of the proceedings, as the Metropolitan had to leave for Darjeeling.

Mr. Rajagopalachari leaves for Madras on Saturday.—A.P.

GERMAN DRIVE FOR GROZNY OIL WELLS: SOVIET CAPTURE GATEWAY ON ROAD TO BLACK SEA

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 15.

The Commander of a German Infantry Division, Maj.-Gen. Joachim von Schleinitz, has been killed on the Russian front. His obituary appears in to-day's "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung"

Repeated Nazi Attacks Repelled

MOSCOW: Repeated German infantry and tank attacks on Soviet positions in the Stalingrad area are reported in a Soviet Communique supplement which says that they were repelled with heavy losses. The Supplement adds north-west of Stalingrad five German attacks were repulsed and 500 Germans were killed. Twelve firing points and fourteen blockhouses were destroyed. In another sector a Soviet group penetrated German positions and killed many in hand-to-hand fighting.

Fighting continued in the Mozdok area where 400 Germans were killed. On the Leningrad front there was fighting of local importance.

BATTLE FOR GROZNY OIL WELLS

A series of big battles started yesterday in the Mozdok region of the eastern Caucasus where on Tuesday the Germans were partly occupied in regrouping their forces for a drive to the Grozny oil wells and the Caspian Sea writes Reuter's special correspondent. The fighting went on till late last night and the results are not yet known in detail. In one sector, however, the Soviet troops improved their positions for the second day running. Active operations were also carried out in the mountainous district on the southern fringe of the present fighting area.

STALINGRAD FIGHTS ON

Active fighting in Stalingrad continues to be concentrated in the northern tip of the city where the workers' factory settlement was stubbornly defended by Crack Soviet Guards and Workers' Battalions. Russians bar the road to the whole range of factories and the western bank of the Volga.

SOVIET CAPTURE GATEWAY TO BLACK SEA

In the Western Caucasus, where the Germans are attempting to drive on the Black Sea port of Tuapse the Russians have recaptured a mountain village forming the gateway to the road towards the Black Sea coast in a week's fighting the Germans have lost 2,000 dead. The main German striking force south-east of Novorossisk is composed of Alpine tommy-gunners who infiltrate into the mountains while tanks slowly follow them through the valleys.

City Women's Prayer Meeting Dispersed

LEADER OF GATHERING ARRESTED: THREE HUNDRED CONGRESSITES RELEASED

BOMBAY, Thursday.

A group of women who were gathered at the Gowalia Tank Maidan this evening, for offering prayers for the late Mr. Mahadev Desai were dispersed with lathis by the police. Smt. Jayantiben Mithrasen Mahimtura who stuck the ground and refused to move was arrested. She was removed bodily to the police van.

The prayer meeting had been announced in advance. The police were at Gowalia Tank an hour and a half ahead of the time scheduled for the prayers. A group of about twenty women marched up to the maidan at about 5-30 p.m. More were seen trickling through from different directions. The police officials immediately approached the main group and asked them to disperse. One of the women explained that the gathering would only offer prayers and later disperse peacefully. The police officers thereupon intimated that the prayer meeting would not be permitted. The women refused to disperse and commenced singing "Vaishnava-Janato." The police dispersed the group with the aid of lathis.

In all, ten women demonstrators sustained injuries.

High Court:

Shamdasani Jailed For Contempt Of Court

On Thursday, Mr. Justice Kania sentenced Mr. P. D. Shamdasani to three months' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000 for Contempt of Court.

In the course of the hearing of a Chamber Summons for review of taxation taken out by Mr Shamdasani against the Central Bank of India Ltd., Mr. Shamdasani on Friday last, observed to the effect that he did not keep back anything from the Court and that his fault was that he disclosed everything unlike members of the Bar who were in the habit of misleading the Court.

During the hearing of the same matter, he also stated that it was customary for Taxing Masters to state that they had considered all matters which they were required to consider under Rule 563 of the High Court Rules.

With regard to the former, Mr. M. V. Desai who had in the Chamber Summons appeared as counsel for the Central Bank protested at the time and later on after judgment had been delivered dismissing the Chamber Summons with costs, urged that it was contempt in face of the Court of which the Court should take proper notice.

The Advocate-General Mr. N. P. Engineer as the leader of the Bar appearing with the Court's permission submitted that this was a most unwarranted and wanton reflection on the whole Bar which the Court should take notice of. Mr. Shamdasani tendered an unqualified apology both to the Bar and to the Court. He then proceeded to argue that there was no proper application before the Court and that notice of the alleged contempt in the face of the Court not having been taken by the rising of the Court on Friday itself the Court was 'functus officio' in the absence of a proper application before it.

His Lordship held, on the authority of French v. French (1 Hog. Rep. 138) and of the cases reported in 4 B. & A. 329 and dissenting from the decision in 48 All. 715, that an insult to counsel in the course of the hearing amounted to contempt in the face of the Court as it was sure to interfere with the administration of justice by derogating from the dignity of the Court. His Lordship rejected as unsound Mr. Shamdasani's contention that as counsel continued to argue the case undeterred and as the Court did not take notice of it on that very day but continued to hear the plaintiff the contempt was waived.

His Lordship stated that there was no direct authority for that proposition while the case reported in L.R. 2 P.C.A.C. 106 indicated to the contrary. His Lordship was of the opinion that it was open to counsel on the other side not to embarrass the person guilty of contempt who is in the midst of his argument. On the authority of the cases reported in A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 242 and in 44 Bom L.R. 796 his Lordship held that it was open to the Court to reject even an unqualified apology as not sufficient atonement and his Lordship held that with regard to the aspersion on Taxing Masters as a class Mr Shamdasani had not even made amends.

His Lordship concluded by saying that "these were reckless, extravagant and wild statements made without realizing the responsibility of addressing the Court", and observed that his Lordship would be failing in his duty if he did not take a strict view of the matter. His Lordship, therefore, sentenced Mr. Shamdasani for Contempt of Court to three months' simple imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 1,000.

Mr. Shamdasani then applied at 4-45 p.m. to the Hon the Chief Justice to suspend the sentence pending his appeal from it. His Lordship refused to entertain the application on the ground that he was not an appellate bench sitting over Mr. Justice Kania and referred Mr. Shamdasani to the bench hearing criminal appeals presided over by Mr. Justice Broomfield and Mr. Justice Wassoodew.

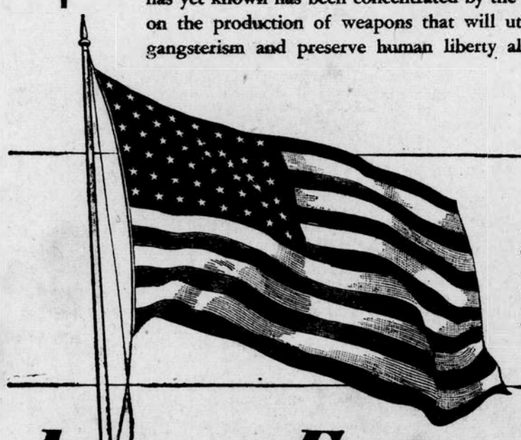
Lords of the Air

The American Eagle has been the badge of the United States for more than a hundred and fifty years. Today this symbol of supreme power and freedom in the air has come to life in the Flying Fortress bomber, the most formidable aerial weapon made by the hand of man.

The full force of the greatest industrial machine the world has yet known has been concentrated by the will of its creators on the production of weapons that will utterly destroy Axis gangsterism and preserve human liberty all over the world.



In Asia as in Europe, the Expeditionary Forces of the United States of America have come to fight side by side to victory with those whose freedoms are in danger.

MERE INDIANISATION WON'T DO

The conspectus of American opinion on the Indian question, as formulated by Reuter's Chief Correspondent in New York, is on the face of it pro-British propaganda. But even as such it has to admit that the last India debate has failed to wipe out the sense of uneasiness in America previously existing "whether the British Government was employing every means of reaching a settlement". The correspondent also admits that "it is undeniable that so long as the Indian question remains unsolved for whatever reason there is a substantial impediment to complete Anglo-American co-operation." American uneasiness about India is also reflected in Sir George Schuster's letter to the "Times" wherein he says that, despite many references in Britain to American press comment "as something which should influence our policy", "we must be guided by what we believe right and not by what the American newspapers are saying of us". Sir George, however, adds that if the Americans "desire a conference on the matter we welcome it". It is clear that in various ways America is pressing Britain to arrive at a settlement with India and that Britain is slowly yielding to that pressure.

Amery's "No"

It is clear, however, from Mr. Amery's reply to a question in the Commons that, inspite of the suggestions publicly made by the Maharaja of Nawanagar and Sir George Schuster and several others, even now Britain does not propose even to Indianise the Viceroy's Council, leaving everything else as it is. Sir George himself frankly admits that Britain's policy in India is "a record of failure" and that if war preparation in India had been tackled with the right vision and urgency from 1939, Indian divisions could have been sent to Burma sufficiently trained and equipped to resist the invader. Yet he does not recommend the complete transfer of Defence to an Indian Minister, which alone can make India identify herself fully with the war and make all the necessary sacrifices. He only suggests the transfer of Home and Finance portfolios to Indians, tacitly assuming that the Council will continue to be responsible to the Viceroy. It is a pity that men like Sir George, who might have known Indians and their demands better, should think that his suggestions will initiate "a vigorous and inspiring policy". He says that action on the lines suggested will be "worthy of our past record and present responsibility". It may be worthy of Britain's record but certainly not of her present responsibility, unless her responsibility is only to perpetuate her imperialist hold on India.

Wanted Responsibility

As another abortive attempt at a settlement may only add to the present bitterness we would warn all concerned that mere Indianisation will not satisfy any responsible party in India. Representative Indians will refuse to be the mere servants of the Viceroy. They insist on full Cabinet powers. They will insist that they and the Governor-General should be responsible to the people of the country whom they claim to serve and whose taxes provide their salaries. This point must be made clear as crystal. Else vague terms whose literal meaning may be different from the conventional one may at any time be unfairly interpreted by the Viceroy against the Ministers. The dismissal of Mr. Allahbux by the Governor of Sind for a frivolous reason is regarded by some Anglo-Indian papers as quite constitutional on the plea that, after all, a Minister under the present constitution can hold office under the Governor's pleasure. Every student of constitutional law and procedure knows that such a provision does not mean that the Minister's tenure depends on the sweet will and pleasure of the Governor but is regulated really by his capacity to command a stable majority. Yet even where provincial autonomy is supposed to prevail the Governor has misinterpreted and misused the provision. The fate of Ministers will be worse in the Central Government unless their powers are duly safeguarded in the Constitution. Indianisation is doubtless a reform. But a more essential one is that, in practice, though not necessarily in theory, the Ministers must be responsible to the people. In short the Central Government in India must be what it is in Britain or the Dominions with such war time reservations as may be agreed to in a settlement. Nothing less will bring about a real settlement.

Willkie Returns Home

What transpired in the interview between President Roosevelt and Mr. Wendell Willkie will naturally remain confidential, but it is evident that the latter's report of his visit to the Middle East, Russia and China will give a new angle of things to the former. Mr. Wendell Willkie was as unorthodox in his contacts as he was outspoken in his views. His was not the approach of a diplomat moving in narrow, traditional grooves but of a man in search of truth, howsoever bitter it may be. He kept his eyes and ears open and his mind was quick to receive the stimuli of new ideas. Mr. Willkie's observations in Moscow, Chungking and elsewhere indicate that his outlook on international affairs has already broadened as well as deepend and it is to be hoped that he will be able to impart the lessons he has learnt in his world tour to his own countrymen.

Not a few of the latter seem to be considerably perturbed by Mr. Willkie's remarks about the second front and the new order in the East. This was to be expected: nobody enjoys the skeletons being dragged out of his cupboard. Mr. Willkie, however, remains undaunted by the criticism of men like Mr. Connelly and he has taken the earliest opportunity after his return to Washington to reiterate his faith in the second front in Europe. The most significant fact regarding this observation is that it was made immediately after his interview with the President. Mr. Willkie went on to say that his declaration regarding a second front was based on the opinions of military experts of all the countries through which he had travelled. It is to be hoped that his conclusions will be listened to with the respect they deserve by President Roosevelt—and also by Mr. Churchill.

Christian Civilisation

It is not clear why the British Ambassadors in Washington and Madrid defined the issues of war as the establishment of Christian civilization. Perhaps they merely indulged in rhetoric without being too particular about the implications of the term Christian civilization. Or, perhaps, they wanted a slogan which, while being high-sounding enough to pass muster as a war aim, was also vague enough to be explained away when it suited them. It is nothing to them that the aim, so defined, may not be acceptable to Russians, Indians and the Chinese, apart from others. They will turn round and say that Christian civilization is not the same thing as Christian religion, studiously refraining at the same time from explaining what precisely they mean by the former phrase. The Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs defended the phrase on the ground that the majority of those fighting on the side of the Allies would not object to it. Perhaps he included the Indians in the majority and the Maharaja of Nawanagar, the representative of the silent millions of India, would readily agree. If any large minorities on the side of the Allies should object they will be dismissed as being only minorities. But has not the safeguading of the rights of minorities been regarded by Mr. Attlee as one of the war aims? Of course, it has been. But it is only in the land of the minorities that they can hold up the majority. For ourselves, we do not take the phrase seriously as a war aim as those who prize it as a slogan will not scruple to interpret it differently at different times. What we want is complete independence for India, whether or not it is part of Christian civilisation. Equivocal pledges are nothing new to us, and we have learnt to see through them.

Frankly Speaking

The First Condition

A number of questions regarding aerial attacks on Italy or rather lack of them were asked in the House of Commons and were left practically unanswered by the Government spokesman, Mr. Attlee. It is perfectly true that a great deal can be achieved by the systematic and sustained bombing of targets in Italy though not necessarily Rome. Rome, in fact, must be left alone for historical reasons. Such bombing will not merely establish a second aerial front but pave the ground even for an invasion of Italy. But the first preliminary even to an air attack is that the Axis should be cleared out of Africa.

U-Boats Off Cape

A new phase in the battle of the Atlantic has opened with German U-boats operating for the first time off the southern half of West Africa from Free Town right down to Cape Town. This change of the area of activities from the American side of the Atlantic is, to a great extent, due to measures adopted by the U. S. A. which have driven the U-boat south-eastwards. But how are these submarines able to operate with great success thousands of miles from their nearest known bases in France? They are not stray raiders fed from a stray supply ship roving in the Atlantic. It is more than possible that they may be based in French Africa. In this connection one or two other things are also significant. Apart from U-boats, two "unidentified" aircraft were sighted near Freetown, South of French West Africa and fled on being pursued. Secondly, both sides are giving prominence to this phase of U-boat activities. Is some big "show down" imminent involving the African "bulge"?

More Jap Landings

We said yesterday that in the present phase of the battle in the South-West Pacific it was the turn of the Japanese to suffer and that the run of their losses continued. It still continues. The Washington "communique" regarding the results of the short but sharp naval battle has been followed by another announcing the toll recently taken of Jap shipping by U. S. submarines. They have sunk one heavy cruiser—a bad loss for the Japs immediately after the destruction of two, if not three, other heavy cruisers and four auxiliaries, and probably sunk another auxiliary and damaged two more. This is an impressive achievement. But all the losses sustained by the Japs have failed to affect the grimness of their decision and, indeed, the latest report is that they have returned to the attack in force almost threatening the optimism of Rear-Admiral McCain which has later been supported by Admiral Nimitz himself. We, however, hope that Allied aircraft and the American naval task force which is in the vicinity ought to be able to do something about it.

"Morning News" Eed Number

"Morning News", the Calcutta daily, has brought out a Special Eed Number, containing a number of interesting contributions on Islamic and general topics. The most interesting article is by the editor, Mr. Abdul Rehman Siddiqi, on the life of Jamaluddin Afghani, the great intellectual and revolutionary, who was responsible for much of the political awakening in the Middle Eastern countries in the 19th century. Professor K. T. Shah contributes an article on "War Finance In India During World War" and Ela Sen writes about "The Women Of Asia." The Special Number which runs over 52 pages is excellent value for two annas.

POSER FOR DELHI MAGISTRATE

Does Mourning Procession Come Under Ban?

NEW DELHI, Oct. 15.

A group of women and girls numbering 29 including the Principal, Madan Mohan Industrial School for Women, were placed before Mr. Disney, Additional District Magistrate, on a charge of taking out a procession on October 11 in contravention of the District Magistrate's order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C. Banning the assembly of ten or more persons.

All the accused including about half a dozen minor girls admitted having taken part in the procession and refusing to disperse when asked to do so by the city Magistrate. They however pleaded that it was a mourning procession in memory of those killed in the disturbances in the country and as mourning processions were definitely exempted from the operation of the order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C. they did not infringe the order.

One girl while pleading that by participating in the procession she did not defy any order asked the Magistrate why the large number of police who came out of the Kotwali to arrest them were not prosecuted for the defiance of the order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C. as they too were more than ten in number. She further asked whether the crowd that listened to the microphone on the road did not contravene the order under Sec. 144 Cr. P. C.

The prosecution evidence was concluded and the Magistrate adjourned the case till October 21. for recording defence evidence.—A. P.

Editors Battle To Keep "Truth In News"

No Case For Suppression Except For National Security, Says Haley

LONDON, October 15.

The necessity for being absolutely uncompromising in "truth in news" was emphasised by Mr. W. J. Haley, Joint Managing Director of the "Manchester Guardian" and the "Manchester Evening News" and a Director of Reuters, in a broadcast postscript to the B.B.C. To most people, he said, truth in news was a splendid ideal—until they came up against it themselves.

Lost Ground Must Be Regained

Mr. Haley continued: "Every responsible editor in this country is fighting a battle to keep truth in the news—a battle which has been lost in some countries for years. It is a battle that will have to be fought for years to come to regain lost ground and to see that we continue to hold our own.

NO PLACE FOR 'DEFEAT'

In this country, of course, we automatically rule out the idea of defeat. Why? Why do we all say 'it can't happen here.' Because the people of this country brought up in a long tradition of freedom of expression of liberty of printing and of decisions taken only after debate believe truly in the truth in news. There is nothing hard about making out a case for suppression. You will find it always a specious case. You will find it is always a false case. There are people even now who think that pictures showing the horrors of war are wicked. There are people who are indignant because the beastliness of what has happened in Poland and Czechoslovakia and China has been forced on their attention.

NO SOOTHING SYRUP

There are people who choose their papers merely to be sure of getting soothing syrup. There are people who believe in talking of shining swords rather than bloodstained bayonets. There are people who throughout the China war and Spanish war and Hitler's war on his own countrymen were infuriated by the publication of any fact that upset their prejudices. They are not confined to one party of these people. And while the worst of this intolerance may momentarily be dormant, it is by no means dead. You may say this is all very well but that there is reason in all things. Is it necessary we should be so uncompromising? Yes, it is. The trouble is that the minute you leave the path of objective truth, you find yourself on a slippery slope. One step forces you to another. Soon you are sliding headlong.

NATIONAL SECURITY

The whole press and the whole nation can be plunged into a morass of falsification and deceit. Think of Germany, Italy, Japan and even France. It is for this reason that in working voluntary censorship in this country, the British Press and British Government agreed that National security should be the only guide. If it would benefit Hitler to know some information, then it must be kept secret. But if it was merely a matter of not wanting to give unpalatable facts, if it was a question of covering up this piece of bureaucratic bungling or that anti-social move; if it was merely that an item of news might be unwelcome to some interest or even to some nation, then there is no true case for suppression. To that principle we must hold fast.

NEWS AGENCIES' TASK

Among the biggest factors in keeping truth in news are the news agencies. Between them they cover pretty well every portion of the globe. They too have the same responsibility to give the papers they serve and between nation and nation an impartial and objective news service and to see that in the words of the recently formed Reuter Trust "their integrity, independence and freedom from bias shall at all times be fully preserved".

My friend Mr. Kent Cooper, head of the Associated Press of America, believes that a world-wide system of such free agencies independent and impartial reporting news of their countries and the world with no other motive than to supply Truth can do much to ensure the permanence of peace. It is not such a far-fetched idea.

HOW HITLER DID IT

Remember that Hitler had decided early that the surest way to retain control of the German people was to quarantine them from the worlds news. And he was not satisfied to let it go at that. Look at the number of times he pressed our Government to make the British Press leave German news alone. You may feel as a private citizen that you have little part in all this. What can you do to help the cause of truth in news? Well, for one thing you can judge news. You can get into the habit of following those sources which experience proves to be not necessarily the most exciting or most pleasant but the most reliable. You know that if every reader would only exercise the simplest critical faculty, he could help powerfully. News nowadays touches everyone. That is why Truth in news concerns us all. In the years after Hitler, it will concern us all even more. In the building of a new world, with conflicting schools of thought, opposing vested interests, the tremendous task of bringing some kind of stability and order into the chaos that Europe will then be in—we shall probably run the risk of censorships far more severe than anything we have now. Yet the peoples of the world, if they are to survive and build well, if they are to be guided by reason, will need Truth in news as they have never needed it before.—Reuter.

AMERICA AND INDIA

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.

The following is the conspectus of American opinion on the Indian question from Reuter's Chief Correspondent in New York:—

The lengthy Indian debate in the Commons receives comparatively scant notice in the American press and it would be too much to say that the effect of the debate has been to wipe out any sense of uneasiness previously existing whether the British Government was employing every means of reaching a settlement.

The group which previously regarded India as a stick with which to beat the British has virtually disappeared. There is also the Liberal group whose kite failed to rise last week and whose views are emotional perhaps rather than informed. This group carries comparatively little weight in administration circles.

There, however is another group which appears inclined to be critical of the attitude of the British Government in the present deadlock—the group which paradoxically has been greatly anti-Isolationist and pro-British and which desires a settlement of the Indian problem above all to remove the last obstacle to complete rapprochement between the United States and Great Britain.

It is undeniable that so long as the Indian question remains unsolved for whatever reason there is a substantial impediment to complete Anglo-American co-operation. While therefore, the Administration turns a perfect poker-face towards the Indian situation it is possible to guage something of what Administration circles are thinking.

On the other hand public expressions that have arisen in India are regarded here in many quarters as disquieting. American opinion is convinced that freedom of India in any case lies at the end of the war and that no matter what may be the reason for Indian distrust there is now no cause for it and even if there is a cause America feels she is morally bound to see that pledges of freedom are carried out. In these circumstances there is an attitude of scepticism among Americans who would ordinarily sympathise with India as to the reasons for demanding processes of immediate independence while the cause of the United Nations is so critical.—Reuter.

ALLIED WAR AIM

LONDON, Oct. 14.

The peace aims of the United Nations should be expressed in terms of the Atlantic Charter and not as an exclusive concern of Christianity, declared Mr. Reginald Sorensen (Labour) in the Commons on Tuesday.

He complained that the British Ambassadors in Washington and Madrid, Lord Halifax and Sir Samuel Hoare, had defined the issues of war as the establishment of Christian civilisation.

The Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs Mr. Richard Law replied, 'though the Atlantic Charter remains the authoritative expression of the war aims of the British Government I think the Charter falls within the broad principles of Christianity as would, I hope, any other aims to which the British Government subscribe.' He added 'I do not think the majority of those fighting on the side of the Allies would dissent from the proposition that they are fighting for Christian civilisation.'

Conservative Earl Winterton declared that a number of leading Moslems had misunderstood the position and gave notice that he would raise the matter at some subsequent time.—Reuter.

Needless to say, Mr. Paroo is a very conscientious worker and young man of promise who is always ready to serve his countrymen irrespective of caste and creed. We extend our sincere congratulations to Mr. Paroo on his unusual success in public life.—"Africa Sentinel" of Daressalam.

SMUTS TO ADDRESS PARLIAMENT

Joint Session Of Both Houses Will Hear Dominion Premier

LONDON, Oct. 15.

Mr. Churchill announced in the Commons to-day that Field Marshal Smuts would address both the Houses of Parliament

Mr. Churchill said: "As the House is aware Field Marshal Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa (Loud cheers) and member of the United Kingdom War Cabinet in the last war has arrived in London. We were sure that Parliament would like to have an opportunity of meeting this illustrious statesman and soldier while he is in this country (Renewed cheers). He has kindly consented to address the Members of both Houses on an early occasion. The date, hour and place will be imparted to the House in a secret session in a few minutes by the Lord Privy Seal. I hope all the Members will make arrangements to be present."

Sir Percy Harris (Liberal): Will the Press be admitted and is it proposed to broadcast the speech?

Mr. Churchill: Yes that is the idea that Field-Marshal Smuts will be able to speak not only to us but to the world.

Mr. Thorne (Labour): Why not allow him to come into the open chamber?

The Prime Minister: "We have to provide for the other House. Various points will arise and I think that the statement about to be made when we go into secret session will answer my honourable friend's point." The House then went into secret session.

The Secret session of the Commons today to discuss the time and meeting place for both the Commons and the Lords to hear an address by Gen. Smuts was of short duration.

The Commons then resumed its public session and dealt with a number of formal matters. The House subsequently adjourned.

First Time For Dominion Premier

The Joint Assembly of Lords and Commons to which it is presumed Field-Marshal Smuts will make his historic speech will be a revival of the oldest Parliament in the democratic world. Back in Plantagenet days when the British Parliamentary method had its birth, Peers and Commoners met at one House. It will be the first time that a Dominions Prime Minister has addressed such a gathering though Mr. Churchill on his recent Trans-Atlantic visit addressed jointly the assembled Houses of Congress in Washington and the Parliament in Ottawa. On the imperative ground of security it is not possible to disclose when or where the South African leader will meet Parliament. No British Prime Minister has addressed both Houses. The last time Lords and Commons met collectively was during King George V.'s Jubilee when His Majesty replied to a joint address from both Chambers. Formal permission for the meeting must be obtained from the King and both the Houses must pass a specific resolution to make it possible.—Reuter.

CITY FATHERS REQUEST GOVT. TO POSTPONE ELECTIONS

Mr. Nadirshah To Be Reappointed As Hydraulic Engineer

After having succeeded in getting extension of life of the Municipal Corporation till the end of March, 1944, the city fathers passed a resolution on Thursday requesting the Government to postpone the elections till the duration of war and two years thereafter.

Mr. Naushir C. Bharucha moved the resolution:

"That the Presiding Authority be requested to represent to the Government that in view of the general unsettled conditions due to the War and otherwise, and having regard to the fact that possibilities of movement of the City's pouplation on a large scale exist due to war scare and the consequent difficulty of preparing Electoral Rolls with shifting addresses, this Corporation is of the opinion that Municipal Elections on Adults Franchise basis be postponed for the duration of the war and two years thereafter.

Dr. Sohrab P. Mehta moved an amendment to request the Government to receive a deputation of the representatves of the Corporation to discuss with them various aspects involved in the proposal.

The resolution in the amended form was passed by a large majority.

Extension To Hydraulic Engineer

Mr. M. E. Joshi then moved the proposition to reappoint Mr. E. A. Nadirshah as Hydraulic Engineer on Rs. 1,800 per month subject to the understanding that the salary of Rs. 1,200-1,500 as fixed in the Municipal Act will apply to any future incumbent of the post.

Mr. Jamnadas M. Mehta moved an amendment that the post be advertised and a competent man be selected for the post. Mr. Mehta said the legislature had already fixed the salary of Hydraulic Engineer at Rs. 1,200 rising to Rs. 1,500 and it was like challenging the legislature to give Mr. Nadirshah Rs. 1,800 p.m.

Mr. Zulmiram Chowdhary also criticised the system of water supply in the city where thousands of people complained for water all through the year a'though Tansa Lake was overflowing. He thought a better man was necessary for the post of Hydraulic Engineer.

The Municipal Commissioner explained that Mr. Jamnadas Mehta had recommended the appointment of Mr. Nadirshah in 1936 and Government were requested to appoint Mr. Nadirshah accordingly.

Mr. Jamnadas Mehta said his recommendation was not personal but as Mayor which was the opinion of the Corporation. Personally he would not have recommended and he regretted that as Mayor he had to do so.

Mr. B. N. Karanjia, Mr. M. N. Talpade and Mr. N. C. Bharucha supported the proposition.

The resolution was carried.

MAHASABHA'S NEW MOVE

Deputation To U. S. To Present True Picture Of Indian Situation

(From Our Correspondent).

POONA, Oct 15.

It is understood that preparations are being made to send a deputation to America on behalf of the All-India Hindu Mahasabha with a view to present the true picture of Indian political situation to American public.

It is likely that Dr. B. S. Moonje, the Vice-President of Hindu Mahasabha will be requested to lead the deputation.

Reports appearing in a section of the Press about the next step of Hindu Mahasabha are more or less speculatory. It is learnt that the Hindu Mahasabha High Command has not yet thought out any definite future plan of action and the decision in this regard will be taken only in the next meeting of the Mahasabha Executive.

The Half-Column By "Dim"

Tara ("Sheriff's Wife") Ali Baig is working hard these days on her first show. She got her training on November 6th of last year when she saw a scriptless sketch go through successfully after a ten-minute rehearsal in which she played a prominent back-stage part! Tara is taking no such chances with "Hindustan Hamara" which comes on at the Eros (November 26th). It is a self-contained show. You attend the show at 7. You have supper at 9. You dance from 9-30. If I may borrow a phrase from the "The Bombay Man", it is the sort of show in which "prominent socialites" will partake! But to say that would be damning Tara's maiden effort promises to be different. The programme is apparently very secret and my Gestapo Agents are busy covering other spheres of action to get me the information I want, but I do know that film stars (Indian) will appear in person on the stage, that the Goan Folk chorus will perform and that the whole show will come within the meaning of the Defence of India (Act?) or Hindustan Hamara.

There is no truth in the rumour that following the example of the Sind Premier several Bombay knights have returned their titles. In fact there never was even a rumour so shocking as that!

"H. M. PULHAM, Esq." AT METRO

BY T. V. P.

The film version of John P. Marquand's novel, "H. M. Pulham, Esq" a very popular American novel with Boston as the locale comes to Metro from to-day (Friday) with Hedy Lamarr, Robert Young and Ruth Hussey in the major roles. After the World War the hero, played by Robert Young essays a career in New York, meets the woman who becomes the one great love of his life, then through circumstances returns to Boston to develop into a creature of habit content with the woman his family had chosen for him to marry. When, twenty years later, he seeks to recapture the romance of his youth, he finds that it is too late. As in the novel, the story is told in retrospect, while the hero writes his autobiography for a college magazine.

'Song Of The Islands' At Regal For 2nd Week

20th Century Fox have as it were specialised in producing South Sea and tropical country romances. These romances have songs and dances in their full measure to enhance their entertainment value. "Song of the Islands" continued for another week at Regal is one of such pictures.

Pretty Grable, Victor Mature and Jack Okie supply their special appeals to make "Song of the Islands" an enjoyable film. Its being in technicolor is its added attraction.

"That Night In Rio" At The Aurora

Carmen Miranda, delights her musical fans once again in 20th Century-Fox's gay and enchanting musical in Technicolor "That Night In Rio" which is revived at Aurora this week. Don Ameche and Alice Faye are co-starred with her.

On Sunday Morn. at 10-30 M. G. M.'s "Lambeth Walk" starring Lupino Lane will be shown.

"The Corsican Brothers" At New Empire

"The Corsican Brothers" which is a film version of Alexander Dumas' well-known novel by Edward Small is continued for another week at New Empire. It is a United Artists' release.

Douglas Fairbanks (Junior) is in the star role which is reminiscent of his father's vigorous roles of old. He has opposite him Ruth Warrick for a very charming heroine.

"DANGEROUS MOONLIGHT" AT EXCELSIOR

Teaming Anton Walbrook and Sally Gray for the first time, and offering a vivid, emotional drama spiced with turbulent romance and pulsating aerial thrills "Dangerous Moonlight" will be shown at Excelsior this week.

Topical in its great story of a famous Polish Musician to whom the call of duty is stronger than personal happiness and success, the new film is made especially notable by the deft characterisations of its principals and the direction of Brian Desmond Hurst.

The brilliantly exciting air sequences to the new film were made with the co-operation of the Royal Air Force.

WORLD'S TRADE UNIONS MUST JOIN HANDS

TORONTO, Oct. 15.

A demand for "definite action" by the American Federation of Labour to establish an organisation, where all trade unions of the free nations of the world could sit down together not only to win the war but plan a labour programme for the post-war world, was made by the New York delegate, Mr. Sidney Pudell at an A. F. L. convention on Wednesday.

Mr. Pudell protested: "It is not enough to have liason with the Soviet trade unions through the British".

The Vice-President of the A. F. L. Mr. Matthew Woll said that without detracting from the services of the Soviet people it should be remembered that the Chinese were in the war before the Russians, although their bravery was not so greatly dramatized International labour co-operations, said Mr. Woll, should come through an international federation of trade unions and I. F. T. U. is not Russia. The convention re-elected Mr. William Green as President of the A. F. L. without opposition.—Reuter.
